Pay-Now, Fly-Later Fare Plan

Pay-now, fly-later plans for in-Canada flights were un-veiled Tuesday by both Air Canada and CP Air.

Similar to present arrange ments for overseas flights, the new fare structure cuts fares by 30 and 42 per cent and cover trips lasting between 10

Under the scheme, tickets would have to be bought af least two months in advance, round-trip fares would be the regular one-way economy cost plus $30 and there would be a $20 cancellation fee.

Both airlines will file plans for the new fares on Thursday with the Canadian Transport Commission which has to approve them.

If approval is forthcoming, a February start-up is anticipated for the fares.

John McGill, Air Canada marketing vice-president, said the fares were designed to fill otherwise empty seats.

Under the program, a return ticket from Montreal to Vancouver would cost $223, down from the current economy fare of $394, Calgary to Winnipeg fare would be $112, down from $162, and Halifax to Vancouver return would be $258, down from $454.

An Inevitable Outcome

St. John's West had a certain in-evitability about them. No one, including the Liberals, thought the Conservatives could lose. Nevertheless, there are some surprises to the election-night scores. The first is the magnitude of the Tory victory in John Turner's seat. And the second is the amazing second-place showing of the NDP in St. John's West. Both underscore the alreadyaccepted fact of Liberal unpopularity. In Ottawa Carleton, the Conservatives' Jean Pigott didn't bother to articulate a single issue. She asked the people to vote for her if they didn't like the government. And the response was overwhelming: more than 50 per cent of the vote. In St. John's West, the Liberals lost second place to the NDP, a startling occurrence in a Maritime province where the New Democrats have never been a serious factor in the political equation. If the news is grim for the Liberals, it is also a warning to the Conservatives. The anti-government vote isn't polarized.

Two swallows don't make a summer. And two byelections don't decide a general election which is still probably two years' down the road. Governments seldom win byelections. Byelections, especially when they don't affect the government's majority, are traditionally considered to be the voters' chance to "send a message" to government.

The message that Ottawa Carleton and St. John's West sent to the government Tuesday isn't new. Unhappiness

Bilingualism must survive if Canada is to survive. It's five minutes to midnight and the clock is ticking. The government must explain the program to English Canada as it is meant to be and once and for all dispel the tragic notion that every English Canadian is being forced to learn French. The government already has moved wisely in announcing in the Throne Speech that some of the funds for French language education will be directed away from the civil service and into the nation's schools and towards French-English student exchanges. There was an initial urgency to make the federal civil service reflect the number of Frenchspeaking citizens. That imbalance now redressed, it is time to create the

The burgeoning enrolments already in French language courses throughout the west are a hopeful sign for the future. Many English Canadians, perhaps including those who resent the bilingualism program, still want their children to learn the other language. The government should reinforce this fact and in so doing, defuse much of the resentment now directed towards French Canada. The controls program presents a stickier wicket to the government. The Liberal flip-flop, the uneven and at times, downright unjust administration of wage controls, the half-hearted attempts on profits and prices now abandoned in an effort to appease business, all add up to a very sorry record. The best the government can hope for is a graceful exit, as quickly as possible. An essential prerequisite for this is some accommodation with business and labor to hold down demands. Controls are never attractive, but this government's complete ineptitude has made them unpalatable.

If the message of the byelections is -clear for the Liberals, it is a command for the Conservatives. Mrs. Piggott's campaign style won't do much longer. Canadians are looking to them as a serious alternative. This trust should be returned by the party, which now must begin to tell the country what it proposes about bilingualism, the economy, controls and inflation.

ly in France, if is normal for many people to identify themselves by saying "I'm a man of the left," sometimes even with hand on heart. It is rare to find people who will volunteer that they are on the right.

Nonetheless, the traditional phrases have changed meaning over the decades. Just as the societies involved have changed in different ways and at different rates, so the words no longer mean the same in different countries. In fact, left and right in Western Europe are scarcely political places any longer, names of contrasting types of society. They are political directions, arrows pointing to the way things seem headed from the point where they happen to be at the moment.

For example, attitudes to nationaliza tion and social welfare used to be considered arch-tests of the dividing line between left and right. Yet, in Sweden, where the Socialist Party has just been leposed by the voters after 44 years of unbroken rule, nobody wants more nationalization and everybody, left and right, favors social welfare.

In France, the left demands more nationalization while the government, which the left calls the right, is preoc cupied with improving social welfare. Ita-ly, where the right has been in power for 30 years, has one of the highest rates of nationalized industry of the non-Communist world, and the argument of the left is for more efficient, more prac-Are Political Strikes Legal?

It is no accident, suggested, that France and Italy are the only members with big, important Communist parties, because they have done the least to bridge the old rift between left and right to consolidate what Disraeli called the "two nations" existing one on top of the other in a divided society. France is virtually the only European country where the central issue is, as the government has put it, "a choice of society." The opposition Socialists have the special brand of Western Marxism made an alliance with the Communists, and their joint platform is for radical change and an abrupt shift of power.

The growth of "Euro-Communism," the special brand of Western Marxism made an alliance with the Communists, that is rewriting the Bolshevik heritage and turning away from Moscow, has helped blur the picture. It, too, represents the broad contralist.

and turning away from Moscow, has helped blur the picture. It, too, represents a strengthening of the broad centralist beneath the surface of sharp political and class division. In this context program and ideology tend to be more the decor than the actual content of European politics. An ardent French "man of the left," asked to define what that meant, replied: "It's simple. The left is for change. The right clings to privilege."

The leaders of modern Europe illustrate the movement — which could be called prudent progress rather than either to the left or right — better in their personalities than they do in most of the rhetoric. None of them is a giant, towering figure with flaming ideas.

Law Varies

The CLC, of course, stoutly denied Oct. 14 was a "strike" of any kind, but rather a political protest against wage and price controls. This was not mere oropaganda but goes to the question of legal definition. Just what constitutes a strike in law varies substantially across

In British Columbia, Manitoba, Alberta and Nova Scotia, a strike is defined as a work stoppage by employees for the purpose of compelling the employer to agree to terms or conditions of employment. In the federal labor code, Ontario and most other provinces, "purpose" or, "intent" is more broadly conceived: a strike occurs if there is a concerted work stoppage or imilar activity designed to limit an employer's production. This explains why the B.C. Labor Relations found Oct. 14 to be legal, while the Ontario Board did not (the question of whether particular contracts were violated is another matter). In B.C., the purpose of the work stoppage was not to force employers to change anything but to protest the anti-inflation program, and therefore the stoppage did not constitute a strike. In Ontario, the purpose was largely irrelevant as long as it encompassed the effect of reducing output

Having made that relatively easy decided, four to three, that the Nova sion, however, the Ontario Board then had Scotia Labor Relations Board could not confront the thorny question as to whether it and its master, the Ontario legislature, had the constitutional authority to prohibit politically-motivated strikes. The board was obviously impressed by the argument of the union's legal counsel that it did not, on the ground that Oct. 14 was an exercise by organized labor of the rights of freedom of speech, expreson and association, which rights are beyond provincial curtailment. The board examined the legal precedents and concluded the province could in the interests of good industrial relations, curtail basic freedoms. Its reasoning here is hard to follow and seems to depend, on much as anything, on the subjective opinion that the right to strike cannot be construed as a basic political right. In any event, the board implicity anticipated and welcomed an appeal from its opinion to the courts, and wrote its judgment accordingly.

It seems likely the case will go all the way to the supreme court of Canada because there is not much established law on the point to guide the lower court. It is new and tricky ground.

One can, of course, find celebrated cases, such as the Alberta press and the Quebec padlock law cases, where the supreme court of Canada has struck down provincial attempts to curb freedom of speech and expression. But cases involv ing political rights and regulatory provincial labor codes are scarce, not particularly relevant and - significantly - tarred by closely-split-decisions.

Curtail Freedoms

In a 1962 decision, the B.C. Court of Appeal upheld an injunction against a union official who picketed an employer because he hired non-union workers. Counsel for unionist argued that the section of B.C.'s labor law which permitted the injunction was unconstitutional because it infringed freedom of speech but court said, in a majority judgment, that the law fell within the province's constitutional right to protect the property and civil rights of the employer

In another B.C. case, the Supreme Court of Canada in 1964 decided, four to three, that it was within the province's jurisdiction to prohibit a trade union from using members' dues or check-off monies as a contribution to any political party or

If there is any pattern to these and other decisions, it appears to be the venerable "pith and substance" argument, that a province may infringe upon basic political freedoms provided the infringement is incidental to legislation which is truly within provincial jurisdiction. There does not appear to be, however, any clear indication that the right to strike is or is not a basic political

The Irish: They Are Fighting About Religion

By MARY HOLLAND London Observer

"If the characteristic mark of a healthy Christianity be to unite its members by a bond of traternity and love, there is no country in which Christianity has more completely failed than Ireland."

It was Brian Faulkner, first Protestant prime minister to share power with Catholics, who said of the North's bitter divisions: "The chasm was created not by the Ulster Protestants but but the Roman in the Internation of the Internati

Thus the great nineteenth-century historian William

A hundred years later the most common question which any journalist covering the troubles in the North and South of Ireland gets asked is: "Are they really fighting about religion?" accompanied by an religion?" accompanied by an incredulous shake of the head and the immediate relegation of Ireland and the Irish to the depths of medieval darkness.

So, in the years since 1968, people like myself, defensive perhaps about our continuing interest in what is not only a dirty but clearly an anachronistic war, have tended to reply with a series of evasive

No, we say, they are fighting about privilege, about dis-crimination, about nationalism, about poverty, about identity. And in making these answers we have been less than honest. For in Ireland religion is inextricably woven into all these things. I don't simply mean that a person's religion can label him, often fatally, with his political allegiances, but that in Ireland, North and South, a man's nationality, his sense of his own identity, his relationship with his neighbors is defined by

Protestants Worry

Given all this, there is a very real sense in which the Irish are fighting about religion. Protestants in the North, and increasingly in the South, perceive this more readily than Catholics. As the overwhelming island, Catholics can afford to wear their religion easily. casual assurance. For them the right to maintain their distinc-tive identity is still bound up with the importance of being Protestant and they have no real confidence that their communal identity could sur-vive if they were to become part of a United Ireland.

The basis for their fears remains what it has always been, summed up in the slogan "Home Rule is Rome Rule". the power of the Roman Catholic Church in the South of Ireland. Indeed some Northern Protestants, by no means all of them blackhearted bigots, would go so far as to say that this has been the major cause of the present troubles in the province, and that there will be no resolution of the problems that afflict Ireland, North and South, until the Church agrees, hold it still has on Irish life and England you will be struck more than anything else by the numbers of young people. I was told in Dublin that there was a drain of young people, a hemorrhage even, away from the Church. It may be so compared with the past, but it certainly does not look that way on a Sunday mening in St. Mening day morning in St. Mary's, Haddington Road. #### 'A Challenge'

The Church's immediate response came from Jeremiah Newman, Bishop of Limerick, and a former Dean of Theology at the Catholic seminary of Maynooth. Speaking on Irish Radio, Bishop Newman said that a secular State was something "we will have to fight against to the end. It is a challenge to this country at the more f moment. We have got to give plicatio leadership to the people to stand up against a secular State and those who represent it." ### The Campaign Diseases

A sampling from the mail bag of Doctor Hypocrites, the campaign physician: Dear Dr. Hypocrites:

The other night in the middle of a TV performance I was horrified to hear myself telling the world that Eastern Europe was not under Soviet domination. It was an uncanny sensation. I could hear myself talking and I knew it was nonsense,

It was as though my mouth and my brain belonged to two separate people. The mouth was saying Eastern Europe was not dominated by the Soviets, while, at the same time, the brain was saying, "Oh, yeah, mouth? What about the Red Army rolling through Prague? What about those Soviet divisions in Poland?"

But the mouth ran on, completely out of control. Not only was there no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe, it said, but "there never will be under a Ford administration." I wanted to groan at the asininity of this statement, but the mouth refused to utter the sound, and finally the brain said to the mouth, "Will you for heaven's sake, shut up and change the sub-

I finally got the mouth under control, but I am still alarmed by its whimsical urge to go completely off the scope; and fear that unless it can be tightly reconnected to the unless it can be ugnty reconnected to the brain it will say something to make me look foolish before the campaign is over. Is there an operation to repair the ruptured connecting tissue? Do you suggest surgery? Or is there some drug treatment that will cure my condition without long best identification?

(signed) Gerald R. Ford

My dear Ford: Your alarm is entirely unnecessary, and neither surgery nor drug therapy is indicated. Your condition — separation of mouth and brain — is quite common among persons undergoing the transition from wakefulness to sleep. The mind nods, nearly napping, when suddenly it hears a tapping and discovers, but only slowly, that the tongue is still clattering away among the teeth.

The cause of your nodding is obvious. You have been listening to too many Ford-Carter TV debates. Abandon this vice at once, and you will find that evening steepiness will diminish almost instantly. If, however, you insist on clinging to your vice, have someone tie your jaws shut with a flannel chin strap. before the show

You are a good American and a good campaign doctor. I am a good American, too, but I have an embarrasing condition. too, but I have an embarrasing condition.

A few weeks ago, I noticed that my mouth inisted on going right on talking after my brain had run out of things for it to say.

The worst part was that when the mouth got into these runaway moods, what it talked about was sex. It was infuriating. The brain would finish disgorging its contents and settle back to relax. Then the ear would give to the sound of the mouth talk.

Dear Carter: Yours is a fairly common campaign disease. The Latin name for it is speechus uninterruptus. OTTAWA — Finance Min-ister Donald Macdonald re-fused Tuesday to disclose to Parliament confidential documents prepared by a group of senior civil servants on future economic options for Canada.

Opposition leader Joe Clark accused the government of keeping from the Canadian people important information gathered by a "secret little group" which advises the fi-nance minister. The minister retorted that it is not practice either in Canada or Britain to reveal what he called "confidential discus-sions within cabinet."

Clark was referring in the Commons to a document, tables in the house earlier by Macdonald, analyzing the fac-tors which led to inflation in this country and outlining in broad terms economic poli-cies which could be adopted in future once price and wage controls are lifted by the end of 1978.

The Tory leader said the policy analysis made public contains only generalities and platitudes. He stated that MPs need background documents prepared by senior civil servants, which were the basis for the analysis, to debate the

For the past few seasons, suit fashion has settled on a look of traditional elegance.

Gone are the 'faddy costumes' that seemed to raise their ugly buttons every season.

Today, when we announce something new, it tends to be subtle changes. Details like colour shades and patterns.

This season, multi-stripes are what's being shown. At Tip Top, we're showing them for less in our Leishman suit collection.

Done in pure virgin wool, our tailors have achieved a look of European sophistication.

You can have your lapels notched or peaked (as shown). And you can have it in one of many new fall shades. From mid-greys to deep navy. At Tip Top, all this fashion regularly costs $199.95.

For the next 4 days, $169.98 is all we ask.

And from a lover of fine suits, that is not asking a lot.

The minister said in an in terview he is waiting for writ-ten reasons from the board but that he would be cautious in recommending changes because any broadening of the definition would have many consequences, other than in dealing with political protests.

Wiliams said the narrow definition of a strike has been part of the B.C. labor law for e than 30 years.

He said the day of protest failed to get the federal gov-ernment to drastically change or remove the anti-inflation program and also failed to show that the Canadian Labor Congress had political power in Canada.

The protest actually divided the labor movement and those divisions might cause more problems that the original protest, the minister said.

knew how to do best — taking care of people.

And so in May this year he began advertising his unique service for the elderly.

A call to Michael at 658-8184 will bring him to the door of a retired person who is otherwise unable to get out. And, for a charge of $3 an hour (including his car) he will take old people shopping, to the doctor's, to the bank, to the Silver Threads centre, to the park — or just spend some time with them, driving them around.

Already, Michael Crawley has become a household name, literally, to many el-derly Victorians. He has es-corted quite a few of them, done the odd chore around the place like cleaning windows, and has even acted as a sort of baby-sitter for an elderly person who couldn't be left

"And I think I've es-tablished that there is a need for this type of service here," he says.

Michael admits that at the beginning, quite a few people phoned him just because they were curious and wanted to know exactly what he was doing. And they never called back again. But most people who phone him now are serious and he has a list of regulars, mostly in their late 70s or 80s, who he takes out on a certain day each week. on a certain day each week.

Some are in rest homes and find it difficult to get out if the homes don't provide transportation.

So far, everything has gone along pretty smoothly and Michael is enjoying the work. His only embarrassing moment to date came when his car broke down right in the middle of the city — with an elderly customer inside!

"I had to puff and pant for a while," he laughs," "but fi-nally I managed to push it to a nearby service station. And my customer only lived a couple of blocks from there, thank Heavens, so we walked it while the car was being repaired."

Born in Winnipeg, Michael has tackled all sorts of things before this. He worked on tugbefore this. He worked on tug-hoats out of Vancouver for a few years, did a stint in the Army, toiled on his parents' fruit farm in the Okanagan for eight years, ran his own small floor-finishing business in Vancouver during the 1950s, and more recently cultivated a commercial berry patch where he lives now, selling raspberries and logan-berries to a winery.

Salmonid Enhancement Scheme Is Already Yielding Benefits

"So far this program has been the biggest shot in the arm our people have ever had. If the program were to go down the tube tomorrow, we'd still be light-years ahead of where we were two years ago."

This opinion of the federal-provincial salmonid enhance ment program was solicited from Ron Thomas, who as chief fisheries biologist of British Columbia heads up the provincial input into the program eries proposals about three years ago for a massive salmon enhancement program. "My reaction the way it was put at that time was it had the potential of being the biggest disaster ever to hit the coast of B.C. as far as fish other than salmon were con-

Following consultation with provincial authorities, federal fisheries agreed to add the "id" and use the joint approach to involve sea-run trout in the program.

"We're halfway through a pre-program year," said Thomas. "What we did last year was to put virtually all our their normal activities—into a pot with federal economists,

In addition to the fish and wildlife branch involvement, the marine resources branch is heavily involved "from the provincial government point of view in salmon management

Although top federal and provincial management personnel have worked with each other on a personal basis for many years, this program has started to bring field-level peofrom both departments together for the first time.

Three working groups — North Coast, Fraser River-Juan de Fuca Strait and Strait of George-Johnstone - have been formed with federal and provincial co-chairmen for each unit. "Really we're talking about an economic development program based on the salmon resource," said Thomas

"It would change the configuration of roads, railways,

It also has a potential to put fisheries on the same pedestal that forestry and mining have traditionally occupied in ways and means of realizing the 25-million salmon catch tar-get and assessing the impact of that enhancement effort on other stocks. It becomes an extremely complex situation when you realize that enhancing one salmon stock can have a profound and far-reaching effect on not just other species such as steelhead and sea-run cutthroat but also on other stocks of the same species and other types of salmon.

One of the main problems to sort out is the "incidental" catch of steelhead by gillnetters.

Thomas has been pressing for a three-phase type of

The initial approach would be to enhance "naturally" by methods such as obstacle removal or building fishways. If that way isn't feasible, a semi-natural approach — such as lengthening a river channel to provide additional spawning and rearing area — could be tried. Then, incubation box facilities "for species that don't have to spend two years in the river like steelhead" could be considered.

A pilot program of producing cutthroat in incubation boxes is expected to be started next year "One of the things I don't want to see happen in this is the erection of a whole bunch of concrete monuments called hatcheries . . . unless they are necessary, added Thomas. Hatcheries would be neccessary, for instance, in areas degraded to an irreparable extent by past land use. Since six to 10 years of planning time is needed before a hatchery can be put on line — and the ramifications of such a move have to be sorted out now — fisheries management personnel are utilizing computers to play "management games" in much the same way the military uses them for war games.

Thomas, like other enhancement officials I've talked with, was concerned over public involvement in the program

The educational value itself might be considered a spin-off benefit of the program and a task force involving public, industrial and government people is now in operation in the In addition, people throughout the province are invited to speak up about the program at a series of public meetings during the three weeks of November. Meetings for the southern end of Vancouver Island have been scheduled for Nov. 1 at Executive House in Victoria and Nov. 2 at the Village Green Inn in Duncan. Both meetings get underway at 5:30 p.m.

Written submissions of briefs are encouraged but not necessary. For purposes-of scheduling speakers, advance copies of formal papers should be forwarded to: Salmonid Enhancement Program, 1090 West Pender Street, Vancouver, B.C. V6E 2P1.

Romero Concert Adds To Artistry Times Four

By AUDREY JOHNSON Times Staff

The dazzling and delicate artistry of the master guitarist times four — that's the sum of the Romeros, father and three sons, who surely hold the crown as most gifted and skilful family ensemble controllers, international controllers. on today's international concert circuit.

The Romeros are not unfamiliar to Victorians and they drew a full house to the McPherson in the first of a pair of concerts Tuesday. The second is tonight at 8:30.

There was some confusion with the published program; changes were made through-out as to who was playing and what, and Pepe Romero apo-logized for the length — for which he took the blame — saying it was as long as a Wagnerian opera.

But it seemed most of the audience would gladly have sat through a program half as long again, for even though "that's all" was signalled

He Quit Job . . . and Went Right to the Top! BOMBAY (CP): — Ten years ago Manu Matalia was a clerk in the coal-mining city of Dhanbad in the north Indian state of Bihar.

His monthly salary was $45.
The Indian Coal Merchants Association, for which he worked, found him hard-working and intelligent.
When Matalia asked for a pay raise of $10, he was told that though he was a good worker, he would have to wait for another three years for a pay increase.

Matalia quit in protest.

Today, the former clerk is said to be one of the richest men in India. The newspaper Indian Nation of Patna, capi-tal of Bihar state, estimates Matalia's daily earnings at more than $8,000. After quitting his clerk's job, Matalia is said to have organized a Mafia-type gang which specialized in stealing coal from rail cars. The newspaper said the gang stole as much as 17,000 tons of coal on some days and sold the stolen coal to industries at competitive prices.

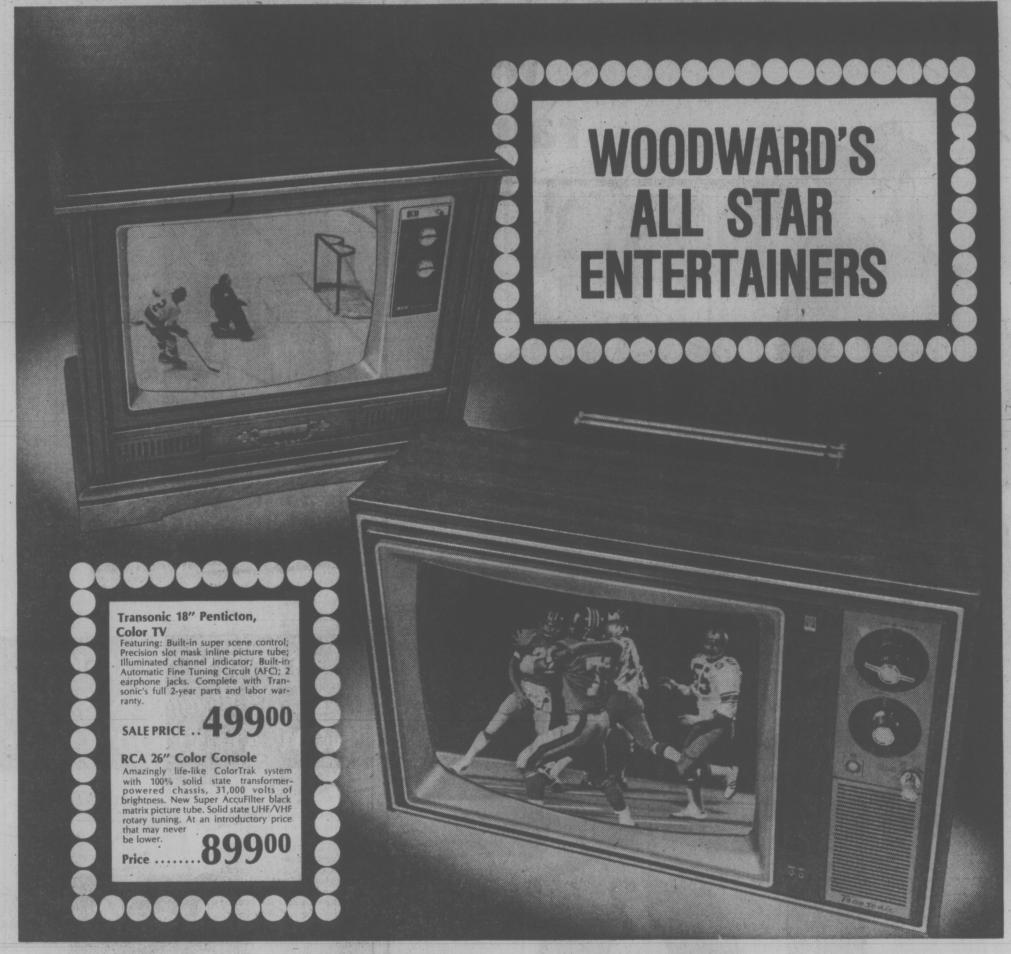

It was reported that the po-

It was reported that the po-lice knew of Matalia's activities but could not arrest him because of his influential con-nections. Newspapers alleged that several top officials of the government-owned rail-ways were in collusion with Matalia.

One newspaper wrote: "Matalia entertained government officials lavishly. He gave them generous gifts in cash and kind."

Matalia was recently arrested in Bombay. Reports said the arrest was made on orders from "high sources" in New Delh. His forthcoming trial may yield some spicy stories of Mafia-type corruption. A police official said: "It may take nearly a year even to assess this extraordinary crook's wealth. His empire is crook's wealth. His empire is nationwide."

Grass fed beef something new? Not at all. As recently as the early 50's all beef sold across the counter was grass fed. It's a fact, Canada choice beef in 1951-52 was all grass fed. If you were around back then you may remember the critical grain surplus. Storage silos were chock full of grain right across the prairies, the government was paying farmers not to plant crops. It was that time that grain fed beef got its start, when grain was the cheapest feed available.

This week the grass fed beef we offer you is excellent quality. Lean and flavourful, it has the same nutritional value as the more expensive grain fed beef. The young beef are raised on grass until they weigh about 800-1000 lbs. Aged for tenderness and flavour, our own grass fed beef on sale today is truly an excellent Woodward's value. Take advantage of these low prices — use your Woodward's credit card and stock up your freezers. (Woodward's personally guarantees you will like this beef.)

Teachers Agree To Rollback

VANCOUVER (CP) - Vancouver elementary and secondary teachers voted Tuesday to return during a ninemonth period wages of about $300 each that were received before a federal Anti-Inflation Board rollback.

Board rollback.

Spokesman Charles Frizell said the 3,200 teachers rejected a school board proposal to negotiate a two-year contract taking into account the overpayment resulting from the rollback of the 1976 wage to 9.6 per cent from 12.2 per cent.

Frizell said the teachers did not want negotiations for 1977 salary increases anchored to the federal wage guidelines so will propose that the recovery method be negotiated separa-

Ruling for Ginter
PRINCE GEORGE (CP)
The British Columbia Supreme Count is expected to rule today on whether the latest offer for Ben Ginter's Prince George brewery is acceptable to the receiver as well as to Ginter.

An offer by Western Brewing Co. of Vancouver of about $1.5 million was not approved by the court last week because Ginter felt it was too low. Gnter said Tuesday weekend negotiations produced a new offer of about $2 million.

Money from the sale will be applied to a note held by the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce for nearly $4 million.

LRB Attacked VANCOUVER (CP) — The Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union has accused the British Columbia Labor Relations Board of deliberately delaying on union certification applications and playing into the hands of anti-union employers.

The charge arose out of an application by the union to represent 105 previously-unorganized employees at Tasco Telephone Answering Ex-change Ltd.

Europeans Love Their Tasty Quiches, Here's One With Sausages, Apples

Mary Moore

In Europe quiches are well known and hundreds of res-taurants in France and Eng-land have their favorite version.

I have given you many of them because for flavor and stretching and popularity they are hard to beat.

Instead of ham my quicke today calls for ½ pound bulk or out-up link sausage and apples— a popular and delicate combination.

SAUSAGE AND APPLE QUICHE

Pastry:

½ c. stirred alll-purpose flour

½ c. stirred cake-and-pastry
flour

½ tsp. salt

1-3 c. shortening

3 then cold water

2 tbsp. cold water. Filling:

sausage
1/2 c. chopped onion
1/2 tspl. salt

1/2 lb. cut-up link or builk

14 tsp. satt
14 tsp. thyme
14 tsp. thyme
14 tsp. pared chopped dessert
apples
1 thep, lemon juice
1 thep, lemon juice 1 tbsp. sugar (optional) % c. shredded Cheddar

(NOTE: If you want to make the pastry and filling in advance at this stage you may stop and refrigerate both separately until 1 hour before mealtime.

Pour filling into crust and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 45 minutes or until set. Serve hot — although I must add it tasted fine cold —

4 eggs 1 c. milk (or cream)

but I recommend serving it Another exceptionally good and different main course pie to add to your "Quiche" file.

CREAM PUMPKIN PIE

1 c. unsifted cake-and-pastry 2 tbsp. butter
1/2 tsp. salt
about 2 tbsp. ice cold

pumpkin 2 medium eggs ½ fe. sugar ¼ tsp. salt 1, tsp. cinnamon ½ tsp. ginger

¼ c. rum or whiskey (OR water) ¾ c. whipping (32%) cream

To make pastry cut shorten-ing and butter into flours and salt until size of peas. Drizzle To make the pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of small peas. Drizzle in cold water as in water, tossings with fork, until you can pack dough be-tween your palms. Roll out on floured board to fit deep 9" pie plate. Line pie plate and pie plate. Line pie plate and make a high fluted edge.

To make filling gently saute together the sausage, onion and thyme in large frying pan, about 15 minutes. Remove from heat. Tip off excess fat. Then to them add the salt. After apples are prepared immediately add lennon juice and sugar (if used) and mix to prevent browning. Add the apple mixture. Then stir in cheese, eggs and milk. Serves 6.

(NOTE: If you want to. you toss with fork to dampen flour, then press into ball be-tween your floured palms. Roll out on lightly floured board to it 9x1¼" pie plate board to it 9x14" pie plate Trim and flute edge carefully.

To make the filling measure the pumpkin, eggs and sugar into beater bowl and blend

Add all remaining filling ingredidents and beat to mix well. Carry pastry-lined pie plate to stove and pour filling in. It fills it but not to overin, it has it out not to over-flowing. Carefully put in oven on centre rack and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 8 minutes then reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. for 35 minutes or until create a Hungarian evening out of what I had on hand, could pick from the garden and supplement with a pot of sour cream and a low-priced bottle of Hungarian wine.

My goulash is fairly authenmain course with noodles finished with caraway seeds and with genuine Hungarian wine, I could make up special salad dishes a little out of the ordinary to enhance the effect and round it all off with a good soup, a genuine potato dish and a dessert of fresh, pickled and homecanned fruit with cheese.

My dinner menu finally read: Bean soup with garlic crou-

A cheese tray of fine Old Ca-nadian Cheddar served with plain water biscuits, butter and my Lazy Dill pickle

My soup may not have been authentic Hungarian but it was there. I'd poached a pork cottage roll in chicken stock and since the remaining gal-lon of liquor had taken on the fine fatty flavor from the pickled pork, I'd added one tablespoon of dried white pea beans to soak overnight, had brought it to the boil the next day and had skimmed off surface fat, then blended that pot in my blender. Garlic croutons are easy Garlic croutons are easy and worth any trouble.

I take the left-over crusts from the ends of the sliced bread I buy and let them stale in a clean brown paper bag, leaving air in the bag so they don't get moist and begin to grow sour places. I cut them into ½-inch cubes and keep them in that brown paper bag, getting drier and drier and harder and harder until I need them.

and harder and harder until I need them.

When the soup is simmering, I pour four tablespoons of oil into a heavy skillet, bring it to medium high heat, skin and smash three garlic cloves with the flat of my heavy-bladed knife, toss the garlic into the skillet, toss them until they are browned on both sides and then discard them.

Now the heat is brought high until it is very hot, then I drop in the cubes of stale bread ond keep them on the move, constantly turning over and over until they are evenly browned. I drain off the oil and as each bowl of soup is served, I add these garlic croutons . . . they sizzle, if this is done at the table. Take Indeed, who needs it?

My "Hungarian" dinner party for eight, cost a total of $8.89, including a litre of gen-uine Hungarian wine. An Italian dinner, including a fiasco of Chianto, pasta, meat balls, a fine salad, fresh

Sharing Husband Will Needles In Your Ear Take Fat Off Your Waist?

By RUTH FREMES, and DR. Z. I. SABRY

LOSE NINE UGLY POUNDS IN A WEEK, DOC-TOR MAKES DISCOVERY: EASY WAY TO TAKE OFF WEIGHT.

Such are the promises of fad diets.

Almost every magazine that appears on the newsstands announces a new diet — some more credible than others. A friend in the publishing busi-ness once told us that the word "diet" on a magazine cover sells more copies than the word "sex". Dieting is almost a way of life: about one in every three teenagers and adults in North America

It's no fun being fat. Unless you've had a weight problem, you probaby can't appreciate the desperate mood of some-one who is overweight. We one who is overweight. We know that fat is not attractive, yet often we seem unable to do anything about it. Exercise is an effort — especially for someone carrying extra weight. Carefully controlled food diets are hard to stick to. So, those of us who are overweight are always looking for an easy way to eating nice if someone could invent a magic method or a machine that would rid us of extra fat painlessly and quickly?

Because it isn't easy to lose weight, because everyone wants to be thin and attractive, people who have a weight problem are likely to fall victim to fad diets and false advertising. We all need to be warned.

to be warned.

There are clubs that promise that magic method. They always, prove to be "fly-bynight operations," around only long enough to collect your membership fees.

The latest scheme for fast and easy weight loss promises, that acupuncture will help you to a slimmer figure. This plan is spreading with alarming rapidity through the United States and Canada.

They gathered together a group of volunteers — all up to 33 per cent over their ideal weight. The volunteers were weighed five times. They were weighed to start, then again three weeks later, after a control period when acurant the property was not used. They make the start was not used. puncture was not used. Then they began to have acupunc-ture therapy. Special acu-puncture needles were placed in the arr leasting recovery ing stomach and mouth points: these are considered by practising acupuncturists to be active in the treatment of obesity. Other needles were put in the ankle and shoulder points which are not thought.

to help in treating someone who is overweight. The volunteers were asked to press on their acupuncture needles for several minutes, half an hour before eating. They were given no diet advice. Once every three weeks, for nine weeks, they were weighed. The acupuncture treatment continued throughout this time.

searchers reported no signifi-cant change in the weight of the volunteers. They all to-lerated the needles well, but the treatment did nothing for them. To verify the test re-sults, the researchers did a similar study with guinea pigs. They put needles in their ears and pressed on them before every meal. Even the guines pigs stayed as fat as ever. There was no change.

problem, what can you lose from trying acupuncture? If you are desperately trying to slim, you're probably willing to try anything. But you CAN lose. If you choose to try the acupuncture method, you're taking two risks: the risk of infection if the needles are not properly placed by a physician, and the risk of wasting money foolishly. The only way that you will lose weight through acupuncture is when. through acupuncture is when, besides putting needles in your ears, you decide to eat less ... and then DO it. I give it adequate light and water and it's as green and healthy as the day I bought it. There is a new leaf forming at the top, but that was there when I bought it was there when I bought it and it still hasn't opened! What can I do to help it grow to the lovely tree it's sup-posed to be?—Worried

DEAR WORRIED: All plants are individuals and there are no "sure cures" for anything. It's just possible your Rubber Tree is happier being a little person rather than a green Wilt Cham-berlain. berlain.

However, if you want it to grow taller, you should take it out of the pot, check the roots and see if they're packed enough to require a transplant; then get a larger pot plant; then get a larger pot (approximately two inches in diameter), replant in fresh potting mix, being sure to add a bit of Vitamin B-1 transplant shock preventative when you water after the transplant. Then, after about a month, begin a feeding regimen: a good organic plant food about once every two weeks.

If it still refuses to grow taller, then accept the fact that you have a plant which simply prefers being close to the ground. As long as it stays healthy, there's certainly nothing wron g with that.

Eggplant: Vegetable Glamor Girl

It's not every vegetable that has been known over the cen-turies as a basic food in the diet and was considered a love potion too.

Today this glamor vegeta-ble may arouse both admira-tion and bewilderment in the consumer. Admiration for its consumer. Admiration for its sleek, purplish-black, rather stately appearance, followed by bewilderment about how to buy and how to cook it. ### Vays for Using Apples at Every Meal

Apples of many varieties are now being shared by friends and neighbors. These Iragrant fruits, so full of juice and flavor, are very welcome when one has no fruit trees.

Eating them raw is a favorile way, but there is a limit to the number than can be consumed in this way, so we have devised uses for every meal.

1 medium cantaloupe
2 slices each the size of a quarter candied ginger, rinsed in hot water and minced (1 tablespoon) ½ cup Japanese plum wine available at beverage shops.

With a melon-ball cutter, cut balls from cantaloupe. Cut remaining melon away from rind and dice fine; turn into a rind and dice fine; turn into a serving bowl preferably glass; stir in the ginger and ¼ cup of the plum wine. Top with melon balls and remaining wine. Chill, covered, for at least an hour before serving. Makes 4 servings.

Mix the kinds of apples, for some will be more flavorful than others. Sprinkle with lemon juice as you cut the pieces into a large saucepan to lessen vitamin C loss. Add about half a cup of water, the sugar, angelica leaf and sweet cicely. These last two items are herbs which reduce the tartness of cooked fruit without changing the flavor. Much less sugar is needed Much less sugar is needed, thus making a more healthful dish. Sugar is one of the chief causes of tooth cavities we are frequently reminded, as well as contributing largely to Canada's overweight problem, with its related diseases.

You will be surprised how good these dishes are, and I feel their success comes from the unspoiled apple flavor, from the applesauce not being sweetened to the point of being merely a sweet sauce. It still has a tang, but with sharpness smoothed out.

Plan Meal Around That Baked Potato

Potatoes are often taken for granted — at least when it comes to planning a menu. But, for a change why not plan the meal around a baked

A steaming hot, fluffy, baked potato adds enjoyment to any meal and in the same hot oven you can cook vegetables, casseroles, poultry, poasts or desserts.

Potatoes are adaptable! They can be cooked at oven They can be cooked at oven temperatures ranging from 325 to 425 degrees F, depending on the foods to be cooked with them. It's helpful to remember that it's the higher temperatures which produce a crispy skin and flufty, dry interior.

Have you ever thought of a baked potato as a "convenience food"? Yet, what could be easier to prepare; just scrub thoroughly and pierce skin with a fork before popping onto a rack in the oven. For a baked potato with a soft skin, rub a little butter over it before cooking.

A true baked potato is NOT wrapped in foil. The foil holds the moisture in, and so cooks by steaming rather than baking, resulting in a soggy interior. If you want to serve the potato in foil don't completely wrap it before baking, Leave the top open and prick the potato to allow some steam to escape.

Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada, suggest potatoes can be baked at the following temperatures. So plan a meal that can also be cooked in the same oven. At 325 degrees F, bake. 75 to 85 minutes; at 350 degrees, 55 to 65 minutes; at 375 degrees, 50 65 minutes; at 375 degrees, 50 to 60 minutes; at 400 degrees, 45 to 55 minutes; at 425 degrees, 40 to 50 minutes.

After baking, make crosswise or diagonal slits in the top of the potato and pinch to allow steam to escape.

The following toppings are delicious with baked potatoes: two tablespoons dairy sour cream or yourt mixed with one tablespoon error or one tablespoon green onion or chives; French dressing; process cheese spread; butter sprinkled with paprika or dill

For baked potatoes with a different flavor, Food Adviso-ry Services have developed "Cheese Stuffed Baked Pota-toes" and a variation "Bacon and Mushroom Stuffed Baked

The companies disagree; many say they have always traded with both Arabs and Israelis and plan to continue doing so.

More voices were to be added to the debate today. A House of Representatives sub-committee arranged to ques-tion Commerce Secretary El-liot Richardson about the boy-cott and U.S. government efforts to stop it.

Representative Benjamin-Rosenthal (Dem. N.Y.), who heads the subcommittee, has advocated legislation making it lilegal for U.S. firms to comply with the boycott. The Ford administration has opposed that legislation.

Eactly what constitutes compliance has become a matter of dispute since the commerce department began releasing the names of U.S. companies that do business with Arab countries and sign statements about the boycott.

pear every year, along with lists of favorite roses and the most popular roses. So often however, the "most popular" are those with names that catch public fancy, not the roses that have been tried and are now growing in the average amateur's garden.

To be a favorite rose means to me that the plant will be wanted at practically an cost. It will be a rose that fulfills the gardener's idea of what a rose means, regardless of whether it is a new rose or an old variety.

Not all gardeners speak of fragrance as being a first req-uisite which is surprising, until we think of the number of people known to each of us personally who have little sense of smell. These people disappoint us in our gardens for they never give us the sat-that variety was first in-troduced to the world. The in-formation is to be found in rose journals and other complete listings of roses.

The rose Ophelia will be a hardiness as well as having the other two necessities for being a favorite rose. A hy-brid tea rose, introduced in 1912, Ophelia is well known by rose hybridists as a parent of many exceptional varieties in later years. Its popularity was earned by its having the most perfect shape in bud and even when fully open. Its color is a pale salmon flesh shaded lightly with rose, and a soft apricot heart. Colors remain as the rose expands.

Fragrance is a delight, both when the flowers are on the doors. This is a light perfume, delicate, yet noticeable in the air at a distance. Flowering is recurrent (extending from June to November) and Ophelia produces more flowers in a season than any rose with which I am familiar. Our

Mexicans May Free B.C. Woman

OTTAWA (CP) — Sharon Lynn Bethune, 22, of Richmond, is expected to be out of a Mexican jail and back in Canada in a few days, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson said Tuesday.

He was replying to a Commons question from John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) who asked what was being done about Miss Bethune who had been held for eight months without Mexican authorities ever laying a charge against her.

Reynolds said in an interview later that Mexican officials said she was arrested "on suspicion" after her boyfriend had been arrested for trying to use counterfeit Unit-ed States currency. Reynolds said he was upset that external officials di-nothing to help Miss Bethum until last week when he asked them about it.

It was especially annoying because the Mexicans agreed she was innocent and that she spent eight months in jail for Planners staged a series of public meetings this summer and distributed a questionnaire on the proposal.

Recommendations include establishment of a permanent pedestrian mall on Commercial Street downtown — but only after detailed study by city council of all aspects of the creation of a mall. Special problems will include police patrols in the area and full-time access into the area by time access into the area by emergency vehicles.

The mall concept has been tried there on two occasions for a week at a time and met with great success.

The plan calls for "managed growth" throughout the city for the next 10 years, allowing for a population growth of about 2,000 persons

The plan also says that council should not proceed with any further plans for additional off-street parking until traffic patterns in the area have been studied and the current problems relating to them have been solved.

Brains Galore ... And the Size Of a Fingernail

NEW YORK (AP)-It's the brains of a taxi meter that keeps track of five different fares simultaneously. It makes a pocket calculator sewing machine how to stitch.

The device is a tiny computer called a microprocessor. And it is being used in a growing number of consumer and commercial products. It is, in fact, beginning to have an impact comparable to the advent of the transistor 25

In the last year alone, miroprocessors, the size of a peats the key instruction bility of room-size computers, also have been used in telephones, postal scales, games, microwave ovens, traffic lights arranged to the counter. microwave ovens, traffic lights, surveyor's equipment, a blood analyser, and supermarket checkout counters.

"The transistor made possible low-cost electronics; ev-eryone could buy a portable radio," says Peter Jessel of the microprocessor lab at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, "Microprocessors will permit the widespread use of low-cost computing," Microprocessors are made using a photographic ess to reproduce on a small silicon wafer the numerous transistors, resistors and diodes of conventional computers. The silicon wafer is then encased in ceramic. The finished unit includes the wafer and sometimes memory and input-output devices.

Mass production of microprocessors is reducing their cost. Some are priced as low as $20, down from more than $100 a year ago and less expensive than mechanical or electronic devices now used in some consumer and commer-cial products. At the same time, the microprocessor is faster, more reliable and, above all, smarter.

Bru-Der instrument Corp. of Vancouver, Wash., is market-ing a $05 taxi meter equipped with microprocessor that keeps track of and displays the fares of each of five passengers boarding at dif-ferent locations.

More than 700 have been shipped, says James Bruce-Sanders, company president.
"With the energy crisis and the sudden shift to mass transit, the taxi industry must move to integrate itself. The shared-ride meter allows one cab to pick up two fares. Be-cause they are sharing one cab, their rate is lower.'

New Missions Awaiting Green Berets

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (NYT) The U.S. Army's elite Special Forces, which made their reputation in counter-insurgency operations against Vietnamese Communist guerrillas in the Vietnam War, have taken on a new job.

A task force of 96 highly trained Green Beret soldiers is on a 12-hour alert here, ready to slip out to rescue a kidnapped United States ambassador, recover a stolen nuclear weapon or free the victims of a terrorist hijacking.

The new job is in line with the changed mission of the force after the end of the Vietnam War.

The Special Forces have reverted to the role assigned them when they were formed in the 1950's. They are guerrillas themselves, not just assigned to fighting guerrillas or to train others to fight

Pay-now, fly-later plans for in-Canada flights were unveiled Tuesday by both Air Canada and CP Air.

Similar to present arrange-ments for overseas flights, the new fare structure cuts fares by 30 and 42 per cent and cover trips lasting between 10 and 30 days.

Under the scheme, tickets would have to be bought at least two months in advance, round-trip fares would be the regular one-way economy cost plus $30 and there would be a $20 cancellation fee. Both airlines will file pla for the new fares on Thursday with the Canadian Transport Commission which has to approve them.

If approval is forthcoming, a February start-up is anticipated for the fares. John McGill, Air Canada marketing vice-president, said the fares were designed to fill otherwise empty seats. Under the program, a re-turn ticket from Montreal to Vancouver would cost $223, down from the current economy fare of $384. Calgary to Winnipeg fare would be $112, down from $162, and Halifax

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm commodity futures moved nervously in relatively narrow ranges on the Chicago Board of Trade today and closed on a generally irregular tone. Trade was mixed and active on the opening with commer-cial interests, commission cial interests, commission houses acting got the public and local professional traders on both sides. When the com-mercial and public involvement eased the pace of trade slowed down noticibly. After about an hour, trade slowed down still more to a virtual standstill into the final few. minutes when it quickened into the bell.

Williston Urges Crown Example

Crown-owned forest compa-nies should set an example for other woods companies in how they extract the max-imum value from their raw material but they shouldn't have to put up with impracti-cal regulations, according to Ray Williston.

"I am becoming an advocate of the view that the utilization of certain types of wood in certain areas appears to be impossible," said the former lands and forests min-that partly-rotten cedar logs must be dragged out of re-mote locations in the Kootenays as an example of over-under his ministry.

"I feel that the regulations should be changed so that the companies can get rid of rot-ten wood in the forest without having to transport it 100 miles to a mill," he said. He also said that he is concerned about an oversupply of wood chips in the Interior and one way to solve the problem is to expand capacity at existing paper mills.

Williston said he doesn't see the government holdings in the forest industry expanding ister who now is chairman and president of British Columbia Cellulose Co., a Crown lumbia Cellulose Co., a Crown but through natural growth such as additions to existing company.

Williston cited a demand pulping capacity.

RE-CHECKING THE BIOPSY

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Is it possible for a biopsy to be negative at one time and positive at another? This happened to my father and caused him great anguish.—

Mrs. K.R.

Dear Mrs. R.:

I found your letter particularly intriguing because it demonstrates special integrity on the part of a physician or surgeon involved in such an experience. All of us in the practice of medicine arrive at what is known as "clinical judgment" about a problem such as a tumor that is visible on examination.

Although we do not pre-judge the nature of the tumor before the tissue is studied in ### your health

we tend to form a tentative we have all had the experience when a biopsy report shows that the tissue study is not compatible with our own judgment. If there is a marked disparity between our report, we do the following: Doctors may ask the pathologist or tissue specialist to re-examine the specimen to confirm his impression.

Sometimes the pathologist may request the surgeon to take some more tissue from another area in the hope that it will more conclusively show the cells that make his diagthis is what happened in your father's case. It illustrates the fact that no one takes for granted any report without questioning it and substantiating it.

Had your doctor accepted the first corryone might have gone along in the belief that no real trouble existed. Your doctor's persistence ble for the fact that now your father can be treated for an existing condition which might have been overlooked even in the light of excellent medical attention.
